Native Plants to Attract Birds

Birds have relied on native plants for food and shelter for millions of years. Many birds use nuts, berries and seeds as a food source and hummingbirds sip the nectar from flowers. If you grow these native plants for backyard birds, they will return the favor by dispersing seeds and hummingbirds will provide essential pollination services. Insects also use plants for food and shelter, providing birds with high protein food to feed their young. So add some colorful movement and song to your backyard and enjoy the show.
